Dear Mr. Boeschenstein:

I wish to thank you for your courteous letter of 14 December 1954 and to tell you how much I enjoyed meeting with the Business Advisory Council. I have found among the Council membership a large number of persons who are not only personal friends of long-standing but who have rendered me in my work here unfailing cooperation whenever I have asked it. It was a pleasure to have had this further opportunity of meeting with you.

Dear Allen:

We are deeply grateful to you for joining up with us last Wednesday evening and for giving us the very comprehensive and clear picture of our position in relation to Soviet physical and man power resources and political purposes. You gave us an intensely interesting, if not entirely comforting, picture.

It is a grim business, but many of us feel that we are more fortunate than perhaps we deserve to be in having the experience, understanding, acumen and loyalty you bring to a field that is comprehended by so few in our country. We are also indebted to you for your willingness to serve.

Many thanks too for violating your personal rule against making Washington appearances and talks, in order to meet with your friends in the Council. I enjoyed my visit with you during dinner.

With warm best wishes and highest regards, I am

Sincerely,

Harold Boeschstein

December 10, 1954.

The Honorable
Allen W. Dulles
Director, Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, D. C.

Dear Allen:

Thank you for your letter of December 6, 1954, supplementing the formal reply regarding the appointment of a man on the interdepartmental committee dealing with strategic information. Our people are happy to have representing your group.

Your personal feelings in this matter are most helpful and we are fully aware of the complexity of the problem that we are facing. Particularly is it helpful for you to point out that much of the information we are concerned about is emanating from government sources. Mr. R. Karl Honaman who is heading the new office has already told me he has become acutely aware of this phase of the problem and he is endeavoring to make progress in tackling it.

Thanks also for sending the reprint of the interview with David Lawrence. This will be helpful to our folks.

Sincerely yours,

Secretary of Commerce

Dear Mr. Weeks:

I have your letter of November 24 describing the steps your Department has taken to implement NSC 5427 and requesting this Agency to nominate a representative to serve on the Advisory Committee you are establishing.

I am fully aware of the importance of this program to prevent unnecessary disclosure of strategic information to our potential enemies. I therefore selected [redacted] a senior member of our Board of National Estimates as our representative on your interdepartmental committee. I am certain you will find him fully qualified to present all aspects of intelligence bearing on the work of the committee.

In accordance with your instructions he will promptly get in touch with Mr. Monahan.

Sincerely yours,

Allen W. Dulles

Dear Mr. Dulles:

The National Security Council in NSC Document 5427, dated July 19, 1954, has directed this Department to establish a unit to develop policy regarding the flow of information which may possibly be harmful to the security of the United States. This office has now been activated in my immediate office as the Office of Strategic Information to attack three problems set forth by the Security Council:

(1) To reactivate the program which provides a clearing house for business and industry in the voluntary consideration of the public release of unclassified information where such publication might be prejudicial to the defense interests of the United States. This contemplates voluntary participation.

(2) To establish an advisory committee with representatives of appropriate agencies for the purpose of furnishing guidance to executive agencies of the government on the publication of unclassified information originating in various agencies of the executive branch.

(3) To activate the program proposed by ICIS for controlling the direct export of unclassified government technical publications to Soviet bloc countries. This includes consideration of the value of exchanges in situations where such exchanges may prove of value to the United States.

One of the problems which must be recognized is that the Federal Government itself is a large source of information of strategic value.

In consultation with ICIS as directed, steps are now being taken to create the advisory committee mentioned in item 2 above and I would appreciate it if you would designate an individual on your staff to represent the Central Intelligence Agency on this committee.

Dear Sinclair:

I have written you a formal reply to your letter of 24 November, nominating one of our very senior men on your committee to prevent unnecessary disclosure of strategic information to our potential enemies.

I wanted to add this personal line as I feel very strongly about this matter and sincerely hope that your committee will come up with an answer to this perplexing problem. Also, I may say I feel that the disclosures are not only through private channels but that various branches of the government itself also bear responsibility. In fact, there is far too much written about my own shop and I am trying to cut this down.

In any event, I just wanted to assure you of my keen interest in the project and desire to help in any way. As of possible interest, I enclose a copy of an interview I gave David Lawrence some months ago which touched on this subject and got a good bit of publicity at the time.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Dulles:

STAT I appreciate your kindness in permitting
STAT [redacted] of your staff to serve as a member of the group that the Secretary of Commerce has asked me to get together to advise him on possible applications of modern machine methods and techniques to various Patent Office operations.
[redacted] special knowledge and experience in the field of machine operations will, I am sure, contribute significantly to the group. I hope to organize the study in such a way as to make the minimum demand on the time of the individual members.

Any improvements in the processes of the Patent Office that may emerge as a result of this study not only enhance the value to our country of the entire patent system, but may very well contribute, also, to greater efficiency in those operations of both government and industry that are concerned with patent matters.

Cordially yours,

V. Bush, Chairman
Committee on Application of Machines to Patent Office Operations

Honorable Allen W. Dulles

Dear Mr. Dulles:

The Civil Aeronautics Administration issues airman certificates to aliens in accordance with the standards prescribed by the Civil Aeronautics Board in the Civil Air Regulations. These certificates are issued to such aliens as qualify with the technical standards prescribed in the Civil Air Regulations.

Since various law enforcement agencies of the United States Government may have an interest in aliens holding such airman certificates, the Civil Aeronautics Administration is considering the feasibility of preparing and distributing to these agencies such lists setting forth the name of the alien, date of birth, country of citizenship and class of airman certificate issued.

Inasmuch as the preparation of these lists will involve approximately 180 man-hours of labor, your advice is solicited as to whether these lists would be considered of use to your Department. Your opinion would be appreciated at your earliest possible convenience.

Sincerely yours,

Administrator of Civil Aeronautics

- Information Requested of United States Residents Returning
From Travel in Foreign Countries

The enclosed questionnaire card is being distributed to a number of United States residents who have recently returned from trips abroad.

The purpose of the questionnaire is to enable the Department of Commerce to determine the amount of dollars made available to foreign countries through foreign travel by United States residents. The compilation of international transactions of the United States, in which the Department of Commerce has been engaged for many years, discloses the total amount of dollars made available to foreign countries and the purchases made with these dollars from the United States by foreigners.

It is very important that we obtain as many responses as possible from our questionnaire, in order that our sample may be adequate. No signature to the questionnaire is required. The information has nothing to do with customs enforcement or taxation and will be held confidential by this Office.

We ask your cooperation in filling out the enclosed questionnaire carefully and promptly. Approximate amounts may be given when you have completed the card, drop it in a mail box. No postage stamp is necessary. Any questions which you may have will be welcome.

Thank you.

Dear Sinclair:

Enclosed is a copy of the National Intelligence Estimate on the matter of trade controls, which I briefly summarized at last Thursday's meeting of the NSC. With a few changes in the draft I had at the NSC meeting, this has now been approved by all the intelligence agencies represented on the Intelligence Advisory Committee.

At the NSC meeting you suggested that there might be a difference of opinion between us on one or two points but possibly the full text of our memorandum will clear this up.

If you have any comments on the estimate, I should be very grateful to receive them.
